

Biography of Mr Magnus Böcker

"Magnus Böcker is the Executive Chairman of Blibros, his own investment company based in Singapore and Stockholm with a focus on companies participating in the current digital transformation. He is also Chairman and Co-Founder of tryb. tryb is a team of industry leaders supporting technology for financial services firms in Asean.

Mr Böcker holds over three decades of experience in the financial industry. He was the CEO of the Singapore Exchange from 2009 – 2015, and previously the President of Nasdaq. Prior to that, he played an instrumental role in the creation of OMX, the Nordic exchange and technology group, and the eventual merger of OMX and Nasdaq in 2008. During his tenure with OMX, Mr Böcker served in various capacities, including being CFO, COO and president of the OMX Technology division, before he became CEO of OMX in 2003. Under his leadership, OMX became the world's largest provider of technology solutions for exchanges and clearing organisations.

Mr Böcker is Member of the Sim Kee Boon Institute for Financial Economics at Singapore Management University, and the Bandra Kurla Complex International Financial Services Centre in Mumbai.

Mr Böcker holds several advisory roles with his expertise in the financial market – he is Senior Advisor to Bain & Co. in relation to Financial Markets, Exchanges, Fintech etc., and also Advisor to Permira in Asia.

Mr Böcker has held many notable past appointments, including Chairman of the Board at Orc Group AB, Chairman of Dustin AB, Chairman of the Diversity Action Committee Singapore, and Board Member of the Shanghai International Financial Advisory Council, World Federation of Exchanges, the Mount Sinai Surgery Advisory Board in New York, and Council Member of the Institute of Banking and Finance in Singapore."